Gentlemen of the Assembly,

Upon the earliest Notice I had of his Majestys happy Accession to the Crown I have called you together to consult the Good of this Province and to complete what was so well begun in the last Assembly but interrupted by the Death of our late Queen of pious Memory.
I am perswaded I cannot open this Session with any Thing more grateful (to a People who have already distinguished their joy) than by congratulating you on the auspicious Occasion of his Majesty King George his being so peacefully Seated on the Throne of his Ancestors.

The Severity with which he has long governed his Subjects in Germany the Demeanour that is given his consummate Judgment by all the Princes of Europe are strong Indications how happy a People we may be under the Influence of one of the greatest as well as one of the best of Kings that ever swayed the British sceptre.

Our Religion is secured in his Royal Person not by the Effect of a refined Policy but by an exemplary Practice of the Truth and Purity of his Principle.

Who can doubt our Laws will be maintained and our Country preserved.
